TREATING FOR SIDE BONES

Cartilage Which May in Certain Cases Become Hardened and Thus Lead to Lameness.

(By DR. MINTOSH, III, Experiment Station.)
On either side of the coffin bone in the horse there is a cartilage which may in certain cases become hardened by deposits of mineral matters and thus lead to lameness. They are situated on one or both sides of the leg and bulge above the upper portion of the hoof. They may be the result of inflamed conditions, bruises or troubles like corns or hoof cracks. Slipping on the stony pavement is a frequent cause, as well as the great weight of the bodies in heavy horses. If the wagon tongue falls on the foot at this point, the cartilage may be injured and induce the disease. The swelling is first noticed just above the hoof or near the heel. Lameness soon follows.

The treatment usually recommended for side bones consists in the free use of cold foot baths or cold water bandages for a week or more. Tincture of iodine applied to the swollen parts is very good. A blister applied after the water applications have been made for a week or so, is used by many veterinarians. The blister is made of two teaspoonfuls of cantharides mixed with four tablespoonfuls of lard. It is rubbed in all over the fingers and allowed to remain for 24 hours, when it is washed off and applied a second time the following week. These applications are continued until the lameness disappears. If this does not bring permanent relief, then firing of the injured parts and several months' rest will be necessary.

DIFFICULT HABIT TO REMEDY

Only Way to Stop Calves of Sucking Each Other's Ears Is to Keep Them Separated.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)
One of the most difficult habits to overcome in a bunch of young calves is that of ear sucking. When we feed calves milk from a pail they eat so rapidly that they fail to relieve the mouth of the saliva which naturally mixes with its mother's milk while it is sucking.

In order to relieve their mouths of this secretion which their organs of digestion demand they will seek something to suck which will relieve their mouths of the saliva which has been retained to a large extent and their favorite object is the ear of the calf next to them.

Unless this is prevented the calf is likely to grow up with the habit of sucking itself when it comes to be a milk-producer or sucking the other cows in the herd.

The only way to prevent this vicious habit is to tie each calf by itself until digestive organs have developed sufficiently to enable it to digest grain food, such as ground oats and wheat bran.

Then they will eat dry bran and ground oats and in that way relieve their mouths of this saliva. After this they may be turned together and there is little danger of their acquiring the habit.

Fattening Cattle on Bluegrass.

Cattle fattened on bluegrass pasture will make double the gain on the same grain for the first three months of the pasture season as compared with the late months of the feeding period. This important factor as well as the influence of age, nitrogenous supplements and the margin of profits are discussed in bulletin 90 of the Missouri experiment station. The bulletin was written by Dean F. B. Mumford and records the results of five years' experiments in fattening cattle of various ages on bluegrass pasture. This extensive investigation involved the feeding of 262 cattle divided into 56 distinct experiments and is the largest and most complete investigation of this subject which has ever been made in this country. The bulletin will be sent on request by writing to the director of the experiment station, Columbia, Mo.

Worms in Hogs.
If there are signs of worms in your hogs, feed concentrated lye, one-half teaspoonful to each animal well mixed in slop or soft feed.

In the fattening pen give the pigs all they will readily clean up, but no more.

Eran and meat meal help to supply the young sows with muscle and bone.

GLASSY RACLS BIG FEATURE OF FAIR

TROTTERING AND PACING EVENTS WILL STIR BLOOD IN VEINS OF ALL HORSE LOVERS.

Not content with an exceptionally good racing card in the past, L. B. Shropshire, assistant secretary of the Kentucky State Fair, has figured it out that a couple of added stakes would about suit the popular taste and he has suggested two trotting races, one a 2:17 and the other a 2:20 event. This suggestion met the approval of James L. Dent, member in charge.

The early closing events, in which the entries closed June 1, include the 2:15, 2:17, 2:20 and 2:25 classes in the trotting, and the 2:14 and the 2:25 classes in the pacing events. The purse in each of these events is $600.

The additional classes include the following offerings: Trotting—2:24, 2:18 and 2:14 classes, purse $500 each. Pacing—2:25, 2:15 and free-for-all classes, purse $500 each. Entries for the class races will close September 4, 1911. The program of races, distributed as they are, and calling for a grand total of $6,600 in purses, should be sufficient to attract not only a bunch of horses which will furnish some excellent sport but also an attendance of enthusiasts on each of the five days.

DATES WHEN ENTRIES FOR FAIR WILL CLOSE

SECRETARY SHY CALLS ATTENTION TO FACT THAT RULES WILL BE STRICTLY ADHERED TO.

Secretary Perry M. Shy, of the Kentucky State Fair Board, is anxious to have the fact impressed on the minds of prospective exhibitors that the final dates fixed for the closing of entries in all departments will be strictly adhered to. "In this way only," said Secretary Shy, "can I treat every one alike. This I intend doing and it will be necessary to refuse to receive entries after the dates set forth."

In the Women's department, Field, Seed and Grain, and Poultry, which always are of great interest, it is urged that prospective contestants get in early.

The dates on which entries to the different departments will close are as follows:

Women's Department, Saturday, September 2.
Cattle, Monday, September 4.
Field, Seed and Grain, Monday, September 4.
Swine, Monday, September 4.
Sheep, Monday, September 4.
Poultry, Thursday, September 7.
Horses, Thursday, September 7.
Mules and Jacks, Thursday, September 7.
Cattle Dogs, Tuesday, September 5.
Plants and Flowers, Monday, September 11.
Horticultural, Monday, September 11.

"I'll Be There; Will You?"

CATCHY SLOGAN FOR BOOSTING OF STATE FAIR IS DECIDED UPON.

A slogan for the ninth Kentucky State Fair has been decided upon and it is expected to become a household word before September 11 rolls around. It is as follows:

"I'll be there; will you?"

The state fair management thinks that all Kentuckians and southern Indians should be "boosters" for the Kentucky State Fair and this slogan is suggested as an appropriate one to use in that connection. It will be advertised extensively and the hope is expressed that it will be taken up and used generously.

In using this slogan the person doing so suggests first that he or she is going to attend the fair and thus become a "booster." It then asks the question: "Will you?" In other words, it puts it up to the person addressed to get busy and join in making the fair the greatest in the history of the south. Just as the greeting "Howdy!" became a household word in and around Louisville when the Myrtle Shrine met in that city, so is the greeting, "I'll be there; will you?" expected to become equally popular the length and breadth of the state.

FINE FOR THE CANDIDATES

BIG DAY DURING KENTUCKY STATE FAIR SET ASIDE IN THEIR INTEREST.

A Kentucky community without one or more candidates, present or prospective, for a state or district office, is a sad community indeed. In old Kentucky, according to tradition, children are taught political dogmas with their prayers. But add to the great host of candidates for the more important offices the army of those seeking city or county positions and a force will be brought together sufficient to drive both Madere and Diaz, with their followers out of the turbulent country of Mexico and into the sea.

The decision, therefore, to have one day of Kentucky State Fair week set aside to be known as Candidate's day is certain to meet with vociferous approval and there need be no fear of a record breaking crowd for the day on that occasion.

Kentucky Fair Dates.

The following are the dates fixed for holding the Kentucky Fairs for 1911 as far as reported. Officers of fairs are requested to report to us any omissions or corrections of dates.

"I used to be troubled with a weakness peculiar to women," writes Mrs. Anna Jones, of Kenny, Ill. "For nearly a year, I could not walk, without holding my sides. I tried several different doctors, but I grew worse. Finally, our druggist advised Cardui for my complaint. I was so thin, my weight was 115. Now, I weigh 163, and I am never sick. I ride horseback as good as ever. I am in fine health at 52 years."

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1911.

Entered at the Greenville, Ky., postoffice as second-class matter.

Just after Col. Astor had been married he declared he was happy. May he not find that this second venture will not result in a disaster.

The jury convicted Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., of wife murder, and fixed his punishment at death in the electric chair. The evidence appears to have fully warranted the verdict, and the extinction of such a degenerate, perverted character will not be a loss, but a protection to society.

How seriously the late strikes in Great Britain have affected trade is shown by August reports of a falling off in imports during the month of $7,066,570, and a decrease of $12,780,915 in exports. After all this frightful loss due to stoppage of work on the docks and rails the matters of difference are to be arbitrated. It would have been better to arbitrate before going to war.

The Canadian farmers are now harvesting their great wheat crop of 200,000,000 bushels and getting ready to harvest a market for it, September 21, by voting for reciprocity. A cattle buyer at Winnipeg tells the stockmen of the Northwest his company will pay $5 per head more for cattle if reciprocity shall be approved. It will be observed that the ratification of the trade pact has a direct bread and meat interest for the people of both countries, who understand that freer trade means cheaper living.

EVEN in the free spending Far West the high cost of living is at last coming home to the housewives. The nickel until now has been the smallest piece of money in general circulation; and it was looked at with something like contempt—a good coin to throw to the newsboy for his paper or give to the youngster to buy a stick of candy. For almost every other purpose the "nick" (a silver dime) was the ordinary unit of value. It has been discovered, however, that much money could be saved in retail buying; in the long run it makes a difference whether one pays 32 cents or some multiple of 5 cents for a dozen eggs, for example. In Salt Lake City not more than 20,000 pennies are now in the banks, and practically none are in circulation. It is believed that if 2,000,000 one-cent pieces could be scattered through the cash registers in the small stores there would be an appreciable saving in the cost of filling the market basket, to say nothing of the saving in petty expenditures if a smaller money unit were employed.

NOTHING is doing so much to break down the tariff bars that impede free trade between the nations as the steadily advancing cost of living. In France the food famine has been the cause of riotous outbreak. As a consequence the Government has approved a scheme to ameliorate the situation by facilitating the importation of cattle and frozen meats by installing refrigerating and storage plants, of which there is a lack in France; by demanding that the railways lower their rates for the transportation of food, and by suspending the tariff on foddies. Of course, these are only temporary expedients for alleviating distressing conditions growing out of a general failure of crops; but they serve to show the only true method of deliverance. The fewer impediments to bar the free interchange of commodities the greater the opportunities for the sons of men to live and let live.

The State Fair at Louisville this week is by far the largest and most comprehensive that has been given. All departments are right up to the mark, and in agriculture, live stock commerce, women's work, manufacture, the State is making a grand showing that is instructing, enlightening and delighting the largest attendance ever known. There is no greater force for development than such an institution, and from the rapid strides being made by our people, we will soon have a State Fair that will rank in every respect with those of the North, East and West, which have for years been one of the greatest factors in the development of those sections.

The Church of Silence.

Word comes from several sources of the wonderful little "Church of Silence" which Mrs. Russell Gurney caused to be erected in London. It stands facing Hyde Park in Uxbridge road, with open door, beside which appears this inscription: "Passengers through the busy streets of London, enter this sanctuary for rest, silence, and prayer. Let the pictured walls within speak of the past yet ever continuing ways of God with men." No preacher is to stand in the pulpit, no rite will be performed, no creed compels the spirit to resign its freedom. It is merely a wayside place for spiritual recreation.

It has, however, been fashioned to uplift the spirit. Mr. Herbert P. Horne was the architect, Mr. Fredrick Shields the decorator. The room is lighted from above, the form and general appearance being "distinctly ecclesiastical." Neither arches nor pillars obstruct the vision, but the eye is allowed to rest upon the two hundred paintings which Mr. Shields—now, like Mrs. Gurney, the founder of the church, gone to his final rest—executed through many years of impassioned labor. They are related to each other, and present the story of the Christ. Where the altar would stand in an ordinary church is the most imposing painting of all, overarched by a circle and inscribed: "Lo, I am with you all the days."

The impression made upon the mind and the emotions is said by those who have visited this chapel to be unique. It was undeniably the outgrowth of a devotional passion such as made the thirteenth century distinct for beauty and fervor and faith. The face of Mrs. Russell Gurney, in whose mind the idea had birth, and whose perseverance and fortune made the thing possible, is one of almost angelic purity and elevation. The architect offered his services; the painter wrote: "I might almost say that I never dipped my brush in paint without a fervent prayer that the meaning of the heart might express itself through the canvas."

That this spot, so noble in its purpose, so beautiful in its execution, will prove a solace to innumerable weary and fretted souls cannot be doubted.

Birds as Money Savers.

The destruction of insect-eating birds should not be overlooked by those attempting to explain the increased cost of living. Government statistics show that our agriculture has suffered to the extent of billions of dollars through the ravages of insects. The annual loss has increased steadily until it has reached a figure which the human mind cannot grasp.

In the cotton belt of the South the boll weevil, which has increased with such rapidity as to become a plague, took as a toll in one year more than $25,000,000 worth of a product upon which every man, woman, and child is dependent. And in this same section is permitted the wholesale destruction of birds, seventy-five per cent. of whose food is the crop-destroying insect! We shall pay for this loss, sustained largely through folly and ignorance, when we buy our clothes. Grain, vegetable, and fruit culture in many localities is so hampered by noxious insects that the farmer "drags home the stinky harvest" discouraged and with good cause for abandoning his occupation. Every dollar's worth of damage which the bird guards could have prevented must come out of the pockets of the people.

Poison sprays and other artificial means do not successfully check the damage done by insect pests. We must look to the wild birds for substantial relief. They will not fail us, even if we do no more than simply let them live.

McCracken has the largest stock of dials for timepieces ever carried in the county, and can fit anything from the court house clock to a toy watch.

A Clean Man

Outside cleanliness is less than half the battle. A man may scrub himself a dozen times a day, and still be unclean. Good health means cleanliness not only outside, but inside. It means a clean stomach, clean bowels, clean blood, a clean liver, and new, clean, healthy tissues. The man who is clean in this way will look it and act it. He will work with energy and think clean, clear, healthy thoughts.

He will never be troubled with liver, lung, stomach or blood disorders. Dyspepsia and indigestion originate in unclean stomachs. Blood diseases are found where there is unclean blood. Consumption and bronchitis mean unclean lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

prevents these diseases. It makes a man's insides clean and healthy. It cleans the digestive organs, makes pure, clean blood, and clean, healthy flesh.

It restores tone to the nervous system, and cures nervous exhaustion and prostration. It contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. Constipation is the most unclean uncleanliness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure it. They never gripe. Easy to take as candy.

The Earth Mother.

The wise old Mother lets man play a while—
Even as a child with toys—about the earth.
Ere she shall welcome back, with sweet, slow smile,
The foolish one to whom her throes gave birth.
Tug at his tether as he may, he knows,
Deep in his heart that she is always by;
He feels her presence underneath the snows,
And in the rain of autumn hears her sigh.
The thrill of spring, and summer's tith the same,
Remind him of her breathing breast: the sea
Is her unrest, and where the maples flame,
She goes forth decked in mood of pleasantry.
The more he strays, the longer battles grim
With foes or friends, playing man's shifting role,
The surelier doth there slow uprise in him
The yearning to come back and ease his soul—
To take her hands and look into her face
And kiss her forehead, while he hears her say:
"Welcome, my dear, to the old wanted place,
Welcome to love, and sleep, and holiday."

Louisville stands sixth in rank of all American cities in building operations for the month of August. There is no doubt that our metropolis is growing at a rapid rate, and the character of buildings that are being erected compare favorably with those in the very largest cities.

Col. Bennett H. Young, of Louisville, has agreed to supply, at his own expense, a sufficient number of catalpa trees to insure good shade on both sides of the Jefferson Davis Highway for its entire distance. Such thoughtful, generous acts are appreciated now, and will live in the minds of generations to come.

Mr. Young E. Allison, of Louisville, spent a day or two here the first of the week, visiting relatives, he being widely connected in this country, and will return later and gather all available information about his family. He was accompanied by his son, Young E. Allison, Jr. Mr. Allison was long a leading light among the Kentucky press boys, and was connected editorially with several of the Louisville newspapers. For many years he has been associate editor of the "Insurance Field," a trade journal of prominence.

Sun Bros. Show Here Yesterday.

Sun Bros circus and managerie spread tent here yesterday for the third time during the past few years and were greeted by a large crowd that was held down considerably by the weather. The show is clean, inviting and pleasing, and the absence of fakirs is one of its most commendable features. The owners have one of the biggest small shows on the road, and the acts are quite up to latter day standards.

Farmers' Telephones.

A dollar a month does not go far enough after it gets into the telephone company's treasury to satisfy the manager who has to pay the upkeep and operating expenses on a big rural line system, and keep a little small change to hand over to stockholders once in six months. He has to cut too many corners, and run too many chances of getting caught short of a bank balance by a sleet storm, or a law suit.

Twelve dollars a year is too low for farmers' line service on the average system, with the quality and cost improved as it has been in the last few years. It is time to start after this rate. The farmers can afford to pay more—why should they not be induced to recognize value received?

Of course we know what the farmers do when it is proposed to raise the telephone rate. But can this go on forever? What is the best way to get this thing into better shape? Some have done it already—Telephone. (The Independent Telephone Journal.)

Wm. S. Fox Commits Suicide.

Mr. Wm. S. Fox, one of the most widely known men in Muhlenberg, committed suicide in his home at Paradise last Friday afternoon by shooting himself in the back of the head with a revolver. He had recently returned from a sanitarium, where he had taken a cure for the whiskey habit, and appeared to be completely relieved, getting along splendidly. It is supposed that he became deranged, as he shot at his wife once or twice, without cause or warning. She ran from her home to that of a neighbor, returning with help in a few moments, before they reached the house heard a pistol shot, and found the dead body.

The affair is a shocking one, and has caused wide sorrow. Deceased was a fine business man, had many friends, and will be missed in his community.

Jefferson Davis Highway.

The whole country, and particularly western Kentucky, is deeply interested in the proposed Jefferson Davis Highway. At a meeting held in Hopkinsville last Saturday representative men from these parts met and listened to rousing addresses, and the route from Hopkinsville to Bowling Green was selected, passing the Davis old home, of course. The counties west are planning to continue the boulevard to Paducah, and there is much rivalry, with liberal money donations pledged, as to the most feasible way. No better memorial to a dead man or gift from a live one could be provided than a good road, over which his fellowman could quickly and comfortably travel. Seven such highways are projected from Washington City, some of them reaching thousands of miles, and it is hoped the local spirit will so enlarge this that in a few years we may have a network of highways that will be a pleasure and a source of wealth to the whole country.

Facts and Fallacies About Tuberculosis.

Although there are many things that we do not know about consumption, or tuberculosis, there are some that we do and a few that we are in the act of learning.

We do not know, for example, what makes for susceptibility and what for immunity. Strong and robust persons are sometimes stricken down with it; invalids and convalescents from other diseases are no more susceptible to it than are other people, and it is possible to live for an entire lifetime in the condition known as "run down" or "weak" without becoming tuberculous.

People still speak of consumption as "inherited," but it is not inherited. A child may be born with a certain tendency to it, but if proper measures are taken early enough, and kept up steadily and long enough, this tendency can be overcome. A child whose parents before them, perhaps for generations back, have been poor breathers, will probably inherit a small, meager chest, and will therefore be the natural victim of the consumption germ as soon as it reaches him. That child will have to be taught to breathe. The tendency to pigeon-breast can be overcome, and a narrow chest developed to normal capacity; but to do this, the child must be kept constantly in good air, and taught how to develop and use the lungs.

A pigeon breasted child who is being brought up on the codding process—oversheltered, overfed and overclothed—is in as much danger as if he lived under the famous sword hanging from a hair.

Another long-lived fallacy, which is a great pet with many people, is that other diseases "run into" consumption. A man comes down with an attack of typhoid fever or pneumonia; after the attack is over his convalescence is slow and doubtful; finally, unmistakable signs of tuberculosis appear, and he says, "I had pneumonia, and it ran into consumption." But if he had been examined before the pneumonia started, he would have been found to be already consumptive; in fact, it would really be more sensible to say that his consumption "ran into pneumonia."

It must be remembered that consumption may be present a long time before the germs begin to appear in the expectoration. In spite of hygienic precautions, we must all come in contact with the germs of consumption many times in a lifetime. These germs we shall either breathe in or swallow. We cannot escape them. But there is an armor that is germ-proof. It is an invisible armor, woven of oxygen—fresh air.

Everything Tending Southward.

In the financial circles of New York and New England there is a growing sentiment that the South is to be the center of the greatest business and financial activity of the country. The leading bankers of the East, many of whom in former years were somewhat skeptical about the South as a field for investment, are now very free in admitting that this section is the most inviting field for investment. The change of sentiment is very pronounced. No one can mingle with the financial people of New York and Boston and other Eastern centers, as well as with those in smaller cities of the Middle and New England States, without being greatly impressed with the unanimity of sentiment as to the great prosperity ahead of the south. In portions of the West this sentiment is equally as pronounced. The men who led in the great colonization enterprises of the West and the Pacific Coast are now finding in the South a field for activity which is claiming their attention as never before. Scarcely a day passes without a report of the sale of some big tract of land to Western people for colonization, or for reclaiming, in order to prepare it for colonization work later on. No phase of Southern development in the last decade has been more striking than that which we now see in the purchase of large tracts of land in all portions of the South for settlement by Western people. It is one of the most interesting phases of American development. It means the utilization of millions of acres of land that have heretofore been practically valueless and the bringing into the South of tens of thousands of the better class of farmers from other sections.

As the financial people of the East and the colonization men of the West are looking to the South as the coming center of operations, so the manufacturers and the contractors and builders of the whole country are beginning to understand that this section is to offer the broadest field for activity in the country. Here great forces are concentrating for industrial upbuilding which will result in an enormous expansion of the manufacturing and mining and railroad interests of the South.

Scarlet Fever.

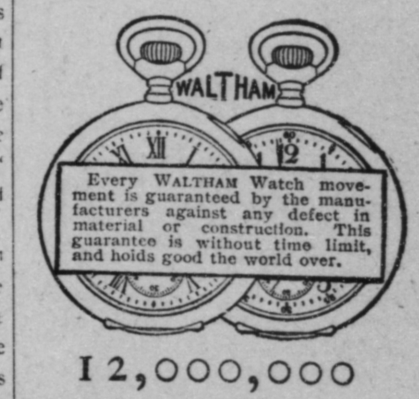

Scarlet fever or scarlatina—the names are synonymous, although often erroneously supposed to denote two distinct diseases—shares with diphtheria the unenviable distinction of being one of the two most dreaded and dreadful diseases of childhood. That is not to say that certain diseases are not more often fatal, but they are not so common, nor are they in general so likely to have serious consequences.

Scarlet fever is an infectious disease, although it is not known positively what germ causes it, nor is it always easy to trace the mode of infection. An attack may begin in a variety of ways, but in general three forms are recognized. In the usual, and fortunately the mildest form, the disease begins with shivering or chilly feelings, sometimes a convulsion, fever, loss of appetite, vomiting, and often a sore throat. In twenty-four or forty-eight hours the rash appears. It is a general raspberry-colored eruption which disappears on pressure, and returns slowly, so that if the end of a penholder is drawn firmly over the skin a white line is made which persists for several minutes.

In another the first symptoms are the same, but more severe, and the signs of inflammation of the throat are marked. Inspection of the throat shows it to be very red, the mucous membrane often ulcerates, and it is frequently covered with a leathery-looking membrane like that seen in diphtheria. The inflammation travels to the nose, and often to the ears, in which case it may cause permanent deafness. The child appears much more ill than in the simple form, a fact due to absorption of the poison produced by the bacteria in the throat.

In the worst form, malignant scarlet fever it is called, the attack is sudden, and the child is seen from the first to be very ill, the fever is high, the lips are blue, there is more or less drowsiness, and the little patient is evidently poisoned through and through. If he lives long enough for the rash to appear, it is not bright, as is the ordinary case, but dusky and not very extensive. This variety is really a form of blood-poisoning, the bacteria themselves, and not merely their excreted poisons.

CALL DUCKS ARE SMALLEST

Bred More for Show Room Than for Profit There is in Them for Market Purposes—Good Decoys.

Call ducks are bantams, and are bred more for the fancy than for the profit there is in them for market. There are two kinds of call ducks, the Gray Call and the White Call, and it is only a choice of plumage as to which is the better of the two. They are both of one character as to size, shape, and habits, and differ only as regards color.

The Gray Call is very similar in color of plumage to the Rouen, and is indeed called by many the Bantam Rouen, and the white is sometimes called the Bantam Pekin. Their uses are only for the show room, or as decoy ducks for wild duck shooting.

For the latter purpose they are sometimes crossed with the common duck or the wild Mallard. This latter cross is considered excellent, the progeny being distinguished for tameness and domesticity.

When breeding call ducks, smallness of size is the first consideration; the smaller they are the better. The arts of skillful breeding for the showroom are being used in keeping down the size of these ducks. If breeding has been resorted to, while late hatching, scanty feeding, and rambling making food have been the means that have retarded their natural development.

The head of the Call duck is small and slender; bill short and broad; neck of medium length, and back comparatively short; the breast is round and full, and body short, round and compact, with medium-sized wings; the thighs are short and stout, and shanks short.

The Gray Call duck is a beautiful little bird, with a rich, lustrous green head, dark hazel or brown eyes, lustrous green neck, with a white ring on the lower part of neck, as in the Rouen. The back is of ashy-gray plumage mixed with green on the upper part, while the lower part and rump are of a rich, lustrous green. The under part of the body on the sides is a beautiful gray, which grows lighter toward the vent, and the ends in solid black under the tail. The wings are grayish brown, mixed with green, and have the broad ribbon-like marks of purple with metallic reflections of green and blue, distinctly edged with white. The primaries are a dark dusky brown. The tail feathers are of a dark, shy brown, the outer web in old birds being edged with white; the tail coverts are black, with very rich purple reflections. The bill is greenish yellow in color, while the shanks, toes, and webs are orange, with brownish tinge.

The duck's head is deep brown, and has two light tan stripes on each side, like the head of the Rouen duck, running from the bill to a point behind the eyes. Her bill is a brownish orange color, and her eyes are dark hazel or brown. The neck is light brown, pencilled with darker brown; breast, dark brown, pencilled with lighter brown; back, light brown, marked with green, and the under parts and sides of body are light brown, each feather distinctly pencilled with rich dark brown. The plumage of wing is light brown, mixed with green, and is crossed by a broad bar of rich purple edged with white; the primaries are brown. The tail feathers are of a light brown color, with distinct, broad, wavy pencilling of dark greenish brown; tail coverts are brown, with broad pencilling of dark brown or greenish brown; thighs are dark brown; shanks, toes, and webs are orange or orange brown.

The White Call is pure white in plumage throughout, and feathers of any other color will disqualify it. It is in every respect like the Gray Call, except in plumage. In the color of the eyes, which are a blue, the color of the bill, which is a bright color, and the color of the shanks, which are a bright orange. No standard weight is given for call ducks.

Mortality Among Young Ducks.

The cause of mortality among young ducks may be traced to over-heat, dampness, getting wet, lack of grit, grey head lice, sudden showers, delayed hatching, exposure to sun, lack of fresh water, drinking vessels too shallow, breeding stock out of condition.

Chaff Litter in Henhouse.
